ABSTRACT

A buffer controller between a first and a second memories is used to control the buffer during data transmission process for memories. The buffer controller between memories has a microprocessor used to process the data transmission of the memory bus, a first memory connected to the microprocessor, and a second memory also connected to the microprocessor. The first memory and the second memory therefore transmit data under the control of the microprocessor.

5

10

15

20